

COMMUNITY SELECTION IN HUMANITARIAN AID

While the objective is to include high-risk communities, selection of project areas in such projects is often fairly intransparent, with possibly subjective mechanisms at work and no guarantee that the most-at-risk communities are included.

The analysis carried out here is a data-driven prioritization framework, which aims to select those areas which have highest risk as project areas.

